14,2 is the best system definition for your system! but that is only important when upgrading to sierra but the new sierra rom should not brake your system as there are no big changes in the sierra rom. did you set your bios parameters correctly? especially for your graphics card? it's possible the the settings are wrong and the internal graphicscard has the picture. you can test that by changing the display cable.

maybe you can boot the system in verbose-mode and post a picture of the results!
