Vielleicht hat es ja damit zutun, wer es noch nicht sieht

Zitat

If you do not yet see the iOS 11.0.1 software update available you may need to quit the Settings app and relaunch.

Users who are still enrolled in the beta program may need to remove the iOS beta profile to find the update available on their iPhone or iPad. It is a good idea to reboot the device after removing a beta profile, and then returning to Settings app where you will find the software update available to download.

Sometimes simply waiting a bit before relaunching Settings app can be necessary to make a freshly released software update visible on a particular device.
