This has to be done on your own with dumps from your actual bios. Some ROM values are unique to every Machine (eg. HardwareID, SLIP Tables and so on) and should not be interchanged. Using a ROM from the Web or from another person is a bad idea. The process of whitelist removal itself is described by Sascha 77 in this thread: BIOS Mod \(WWAN Whitelist\) mit wenigen Schritten selbstgemacht if you feel uncomfortable with it or don't understand how to do it feel free to ask or send me your dumps via PN and I'll remove the whitelist for you.

thankks I'll buy these from the internet (SOIC8 SOP8 and CH341A). Right? and i will try whitelist removal if i cant i will send my dump actually i am using intel wifi right now

I can use wifi and bluetooth but I can't use a few features because location isn't working

Do you think I need to remove the whitelist

Should I continue to use it like this griven sorry for tags
