If people generates their incoming using only a beta system .. they are the cause of their problem! 😊

While I basically agree with your point, this simply is not true at the moment. Stable releases don't work properly as well and have just as much issues. So using betas at the moment is my best bet on getting bugs fixed faster (at least potentially). But with Monterey they just get more and more, unfortunately.

Also have to add, I am using betas productively since 2019 and I rarely had significant issues with them even during the time I was using a Hackintosh.
