

Interest in Ozmosis

What competition? Competition only drives development forward if there are enough competitors. If not, it is better to work together to make progress. Open Core is only supported by a few, hopefully they will continue to focus on it and invest their time in a project that many people around the world use without getting much in return. I don't think many would switch to Ozmosis if it couldn't do at least the same as Open Core can. Why should they?
